CALL FOR PAPERS

Desmadres Congress seeks to generate a space of encounter, discussion and participation to reflect on Latin American literature of the 21st century in an academic environment, although crossed by other discourses and dynamics. Based on the idea that it is necessary to think in/with other innovative theory frameworks that allow us to understand the most recent changes and interpretations of molds, genres and species. And thus, to reflect on this territory we usually call Latin America, from within and from the outside.

This event is part of the activities of Desmadres. Festival of Latin American Literature.

VENUES

- Mariano Moreno National Library. Agüero 2502, CABA.
- National University of San Martín. Volta building. Roque Sáenz Peña 832, CABA.
- National University of Arts. Bartolomé Mitre 1869, CABA.

ADDRESSEES

This call for papers is addressed to scholars, professors, students, writers and translators to present papers on Latin American literature produced in the 21st century. Institutional affiliation is not required.

METHODS

Participation in the Desmadres Congress can take the form of individual or group presentations and special activities.

Papers

- There will be round tables, whose papers (up to four in each round table) will not exceed 15 minutes in length.
- We will be particularly strict with time limits, as we will prioritize respect for colleagues, the audience and the schedule.
- Each table will be coordinated by a moderator, who will be in charge of introducing the speakers, keeping time and coordinating questions from the audience.

Special activities

- The congress will be intertwined with a series of express lectures, interviews, conferences, performances and the presence of different agents linked to literature: writers, editors, proofreaders, translators, agents, journalists, influencers, booksellers, librarians, designers, artists, musicians, professors and students.
- Applicants may propose presentations in special, non-traditional formats, whose character may not be primarily expository.

TOPICS OF INTEREST

Territory

Configuration of spaces based on borders in crisis. Deterritoriality and transterritoriality. New cartographies. Spheres in which subjectivities are included or excluded. Margins and centers. Subalternity and decolonialism. Hegemony and counterhegemony. Science fiction, dystopia and narratives where space mutates. The body as space.

Gender

Feminisms. New subjectivities of LGBTIQ communities. Sexual dissidence, experiences, accounts, archives and collective memory. Body and language. Self-names, identities and non-binary genders. Law, precariousness of bodies. The limits of institutions and their rules.

Violence
